

NATIONAL TRUST FOR SCOTLAND MEDIA RELEASE

21 May 2019

Geilston plays host to the madness of Macbeth

This June, 'Macbeth the Red' comes to the National Trust for Scotland's Geilston Garden, Cardross.

Fans of Shakespeare can enjoy this performance of the playwright's best-known tragedy on Saturday 1 June when the Walking Theatre Company bring their unique interpretation of Macbeth to Geilston Garden.

Macbeth the Red is the Walking Theatre Company's adaptation of the ultimate Scottish play, Shakespeare's Macbeth...but served with a twist!

First Lady Gruoch Macbeth, granddaughter of the mighty King Kenneth III, takes control and leads her lord on a merry dance.

Step back through time into a world of magic, murder, intrigue and monarchy as you walk in the footsteps of the real Red King: Macbeth, Mormaer (Earl) of the Province of Moray.

Emma Sweeney, Visitor Services Supervisor said: "We're really excited to welcome the Walking Theatre Company to Geilston Garden as we play host to their exceptional production of Shakespeare's Macbeth. This performance is not to be missed - either by those with a love of classical plays or those who wish to experience an outdoor production with a difference!"

This promenade performance will take place in areas around the Geilston Garden so attendees are advised to dress for the weather and bring along their own chair or rug.

- ENDS -

