

NATIONAL TRUST FOR SCOTLAND MEDIA RELEASE

4 April 2017

Double the fun for Barry Mill ducks

One of Angus's most popular Easter events has been expanded to run over two days this April.

The National Trust for Scotland's annual duck race at the historic Barry Mill has grown hugely in popularity over the past few years. For the first time, the race will take place on Saturday 15 and Sunday 16 April, giving hundreds more families the chance to get in on the Easter fun.

Miller Ciaran Quigley said:

"As well as our ever popular duck races, we're looking for the best painted eggs, holding an Easter bonnet parade and with extra stalls and snacks, Easter 2017 is going to be bigger than ever at Barry Mill."

Owned and cared for by the National Trust for Scotland, the charity that conserves and promotes Scotland's heritage, Barry Mill is one of a handful of remaining water mills in Scotland and the only place where the public can experience milling demonstrations up close.

The duck race events run on Saturday 15 and Sunday 16 April from 11am until 3pm. Judging in competitions takes place at 2.30pm – entries must be received by 2.15pm.
