Upside Doon announces first batch of bands

Alloway's one day music festival Upside Doon has announced the first batch of bands joining its 2017 line up.

The BMX Bandits, Mull Historical Society, Have Mercy Las Vegas, The Stumblers and C. Macleod are confirmed for the event on Saturday 24 June.

Upside Doon made its first appearance on Scotland's festival scene in 2016, with an eclectic bill and boutique feel, all set in Alloway, the town that provided so much inspiration for Robert Burns.

The one-dayer's debut event was full of top Scottish talent, with sets from King Creosote, Niteworks and Hector Bizerk.

Organisers, the National Trust for Scotland, the charity that conserves and promotes Scotland's heritage, are keeping Scottish creativity at the top of the bill for the 2017 edition too.

The BMX Bandits are one of Scotland's most influential indie bands. They've been creating and performing their inimitable fusion of 60s-inspired melodies and deceptively simple lyrics that are equal parts humorous and heart-breaking for 30 years.

Colin MacIntyre – better known as Mull Historical Society – is one of the UK's most respected songwriters & performers. Also a multi-instrumentalist, programmer, producer, and now award-winning novelist, MacIntyre released his seventh MHS album 'Dear Satellite' in 2016.

Have Mercy Las Vegas play a rowdy and eclectic mix of folk and blues, with a Celtic flair. Their debut EP That's Life was released in September 2016 to rave reviews. Live, their foot-stomping hoe downs and harmonious laments really sing.

Kilmarnock's The Stumblers combine Celtic melodies, with lyrics inspired by protest-era folk and bluegrass instruments with a chaotic punk rock sensibility to create something totally unique.

C. Macleod's album Bloodlines has the spirit of a modern-day folk record, but is at home in the indie guitar world alongside bands like My Morning Jacket, The National and The War On Drugs. Hailing from Stornoway, Colin's songs are influenced by local folk tales.

Tickets for Upside Doon are on sale now at <https://nts.cloudvenue.co.uk/upsidedoon> and cost £17 for adults, £14 for concessions.

Just an hour from Glasgow by train, the Robert Burns Birthplace Museum is a cultural hub in Ayrshire, bringing the best in art, music and literature to the public. Generously supported by the Scottish Government and the Heritage Lottery Fund, the museum commemorates the life and works of Robert Burns.
