TRUST TRANSPORTS VISITORS TO NEVERLAND WITH NEW OUTDOOR THEATRE SHOW

- New production of Peter Pan set to take place at Greenbank Garden, Glasgow
- Immersion Theatre's outdoor musical production will take place on 17 July
- Tickets for the theatre show can be booked online and at the property

Fly away to Neverland this summer with the National Trust for Scotland as it stages a new musical production of Peter Pan in the beautiful surroundings of Greenbank House and Garden in Glasgow.

The conservation charity and Immersion Theatre will be thinking happy thoughts as they welcome visitors to the fun and exciting production of Peter Pan, taking place in the lush garden at Greenbank, that is sure to delight all members of the family during the school summer holidays.

The 18th century house and garden in the southside of the city, which is cared for, protected and shared by the National Trust for Scotland for the access and enjoyment of everyone, will host the outdoor musical 17 July, starting at 4pm, with visitors welcome from 3pm.

Julie Gilliland, National Trust for Scotland Visitor Services Manager at Greenbank House and Garden, said: "We're super excited to have Immersion Theatre bring their funny and enchanting tale of Peter Pan to Greenbank House and Garden here in Glasgow in July. The much-loved children's story will be brought to life with a hilarious script, catchy music and loads of audience interaction to keep young ones and big kids at heart entertained during the school holidays.

"It's thanks to the continued generosity of our members and supporters that we're able to continue to care for this special place and protect Scotland's rich cultural and natural heritage now and for the benefit of future generations. Events like the production of Peter Pan contribute to our engagement objectives outlined in our strategy, launched in 2022, to provide access to nature, beauty and heritage for everyone to enjoy."

Tickets are available to book online and at Greenbank House and Garden on the day, with adult tickets £14, child tickets £12 and family tickets available at £48. Tickets are available on the property's Eventbrite page, here: <https://shorturl.at/vxUaC>.

Greenbank House and Garden is an oasis of tranquillity and beauty set less than a mile from Glasgow's bustling Southside suburbs. It's also an impressive celebration of west coast domestic gardening, featuring more than 3,600 named species of plants. Built for Robert Allason in the 1760s – he made his money as a tobacco merchant and slave trader in the days when Glasgow was the second city of the British Empire. The walled garden was built at the same time as the house, and both are surrounded by tall swaying beeches.

About the National Trust for Scotland

Established in 1931, the National Trust for Scotland is Scotland's largest conservation charity and cares for, shares and speaks up for Scotland's magnificent heritage.

Over the last 90 years the Trust has pioneered public access to and shared ownership of some of the most magnificent buildings, collections and landscapes in Scotland. It cares for more than 100 sites, from ancient houses to battlefields, castles, mills, gardens, coastlines, islands, mountain ranges and the plants and animals which depend upon them.

In March 2022, the National Trust for Scotland launched Nature, Beauty & Heritage for Everyone, its ten-year strategy which sets out the ambitions of the charity over the coming decade. From speaking up for Scotland's heritage which doesn't have a voice, to improving the lives and wellbeing of people across the country, and responding to the climate and biodiversity crisis, the Trust will build on its work in recent years to grow its impact and conserve and restore more of Scotland's heritage, as it moves towards its centenary in 2031.

Scotland's largest membership organisation, the National Trust for Scotland relies on the support of its members and donors to carry out its important work.
